Recap of the First Week of School
We have nine first graders and one new third grader to our class this year. It is not easy when you have a new classroom, new floor and new friends, but everyone worked hard and we have had a great start. We had our first great story with a volcano explosion on Thursday. This is an important story to start a new school year.

I have brought a ton of grapes from our backyard. The students were busy taking the stems off of the grapes and crushing them to make tasty grape juice! We are planning to sip the juice and share them with other classes.

Learner Profiles
A learner profile is a document, project, or even a conversation that helps teachers learn more about their students. As a Montessori teacher I believe in the importance of parents, teachers, and the child working together.

Back to School Night- August 31st
Back to School Night will look different than in previous years by design. Through our strategic plan process we identified a need to share instructional classroom practices more clearly and regularly with families. Back to school night is an ideal space to kick off the year in the spirit of community learning. Parents will have an opportunity to experience a snippet of the learning that happens every day in our classroom through a math lesson experience with me. Come ready to learn something new!

Reading and Literacy
We are going to use a new literacy curriculum called CKLA this year in addition to Montessori language materials. More information will be available in the near future.
We have read "You are Special" by Max Lucado, "Choices Matter" by Atsuko and Michael O'Keefe, and we are currently reading "The Giraffe, the Pelly and Me" by Roald Dahl.

Reading is a critical piece of children's academic success. It is important that families spend 20 minutes EACH night reading, whether that is a story together or carving out time for everyone to dive into their own books.

Dismissal
Please make sure that you are on the blacktop or front door promptly at 3:10 to meet your child. If you prefer for them to walk
